

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF COUNTRY

Every part of Australia is, always was and always will be, Aboriginal land. Our journey in 2021 across the magnificent islands of lutruwita/Tasmania goes hand in hand with our respectful acknowledgement of the significance of place and story to this country's First Nations artists and communities whose connection to Country is profound, inseparable and central to Australia's cultural identity. Every beach, mountain, bay, gorge, plain and river across each island has a story that resonates from its past through the present to the future. As a community gathering place, a Festival of arts, cultural exchange and celebration and as a site for the sharing of ideas and stories, Ten Days on the Island pays deep respect to the palawa – original owners and cultural custodians – of all the lands and waters across lutruwita/Tasmania upon which our Festival takes place. We acknowledge the pirinilaplu people of the North West Coast, the panina and litarimirina people of the North and the muwinina people of the South and palawa Elders.

Throughout the brochure we have listed dual names for places across lutruwita/Tasmania. These names of places are in palawa kani, the language of Tasmanian Aborigines, with thanks to the Tasmanian Aboriginal Centre. To learn more about palawa kani, visit tacinc.com.au.

CELEBRATING LOCAL ARTISTS

The Tasmanian Government is an ardent supporter of Tasmania's vibrant cultural and creative industries and we continue to support Ten Days on the Island, our iconic international arts festival which celebrates its 20th anniversary in 2021.

The arts, events and tourism sectors were greatly affected by the restrictions required to manage the impact of the global COVID-19 pandemic. Tasmanians have done an extraordinary job and, currently, we are one of the safest jurisdictions in the world.

As we move forward and return to a more 'normal' life, albeit still a COVID life, we can come together again to share and enjoy the wonderful and varied arts experiences that Ten Days on the Island has developed in collaboration with our great Tasmanian artists and arts companies.

From March 2020, Artistic Director Lindy Hume's vision for the 2021 Festival was shaped by the realities of lockdown, social distancing and travel restrictions, which meant planning had to go online and the international program would be developed by artists in Tasmania. It's so very inspiring that our artists have stepped up to the plate and that Ten Days has the courage and confidence to create an almost entirely local program. The enormous benefit to our local arts community cannot be underestimated.

As we have been with our very successful 'Make Yourself At Home' tourism campaign, the Government supports Ten Days on the Island to encourage Tasmanians to explore every corner of our cultural and creative State, with the added bonus of a great arts experience to enhance your trip.

My wish, as Minister for the Arts, is that you will take full advantage of the program Ten Days on the Island offers and that we can all enjoy and appreciate the impressive internationally leading arts Festival in March 2021.

Hon Elise Archer MP

A 20-YEAR LEGACY

Ten Days on the Island celebrates a great milestone in 2021 – our 20th anniversary which brings marvellous memories of past Festivals and a recognition of the significant contribution that Ten Days has made to lutruwita/Tasmania's arts landscape over the last two decades.

Ten Days is unique – we're Australia's only statewide international arts festival, our island is our stage for arts experiences that enliven, delight and test our audiences and we celebrate Tasmanian artists through collaborations, commissions and presentations that create the extraordinary. We stimulate global conversations and revel in quiet moments.

Throughout 2020, along with many other sectors, the arts was challenged by COVID-19, a challenge that Ten Days, in collaboration with Tasmania's remarkable artists and arts organisations, has navigated to build a Festival program that invites Tasmanians to gather in a creative celebration of the resourcefulness and resilience of our communities. We acknowledge and honour the powerful determination and commitment of our colleagues who will, despite serious disruptions and dreadful uncertainty, share the depth and breadth of talent and skill that is the arts in Tasmania.

Ten Days on the Island pays respect to our Aboriginal communities and, with their leadership and support, I'm delighted we will once again celebrate their rich cultural legacy with our First Nations people.

Following the great success of our new model in 2019, Ten Days is pleased to present an exclusive program for our three regional heartlands – West + North West, North + North East and South. You will find that each weekend of events is framed around a journey that encourages us to explore and celebrate everything Tasmanian together! In partnership with the Government, which has provided great leadership and deeply appreciated support, Ten Days on the Island 2021 is a much-needed pick-me-up, a source of hope and positivity and a celebration of Tasmania's creative capacity and strength.

I welcome you to join in the celebrations and let us take you somewhere new!

TASMANIAN ROMANTIC

Tasmanian Gothic has its place, but Ten Days on the Island is Tasmanian Romantic. Our cover image by photographer Jess Bonde was inspired by The Wanderer Above a Sea of Fog, a self-portrait painted about 200 years ago by Caspar David Friedrich – the artist silhouetted against a vast landscape contemplating the wild and sublime in nature. It is our homage to the Romantic movement in the mid-19th Century, when art, music, philosophy and poetry evoked the experience of intense emotion. The feelings of awe and wonder inspired by the immense, ancient landscapes of lutruwita/Tasmania are emotions we all share.

lutruwita/Tasmania is sometimes called the 'heart-shaped island'. The idea of our island state in the shape of a heart, symbolising resilience, connectedness and empathy, has been a powerful metaphor guiding the development of this Festival. For our artists and communities the pandemic was a defining experience. Those months took us all to a darker place, but they also stimulated a surge in creative activity born of deep reflection and made us hungrier for human connection.

Creating the 2021 edition of Ten Days on the Island has been a festival-making journey unlike any other, but the fact that this has not been the easiest time to organise a festival makes it all the more vital that we have! As concepts of 'local' and 'global' flow into each other through the digital experience, we are proud to present a 2021 Festival that celebrates the brilliance, innovation and ingenuity of lutruwita/ Tasmania's global local artists.

Our centrepiece, If These Halls Could Talk, is pure romance – a pan-Tasmanian adventure across three weekends and ten gorgeous community halls. From Zeehan in the West to Glen Huon in the South, via St Helens in the East, Liffey in the centre and six others, each specially-curated experience brings together an extraordinary line-up of Tasmanian artists, communities and landscapes. I think all ten halls are unmissable.

With mapali – Dawn Gathering on the pataway/Burnie foreshore we open Ten Days on the Island 2021 at sunrise with fires, drumming and a Welcome to Country that will stay in our hearts for the whole Festival. In Launceston we pay tribute to Australia's pioneering showbiz family, The Marvellous Corricks. And in the South we explore historic New Norfolk through Intimate Epics, a walking precinct animated by intimate-scale artworks. These signature events have been co-created with communities in each heartland.

But there's so much to explore. Ten Days on the Island 2021 features world premieres, contemporary First Nations culture, long table lunches and picnics, live and screenbased performances, exhibitions, workshops and free events. And you can be sure that all Festival events are awash with handsanitiser and up-to-the-minute compliant with Tasmania's COVID-19 regulations.

This special 20th anniversary Festival is one for the Tasmanian Romantic. Throw yourself into these extraordinary landscapes and let your emotions run wild!

TEN HALLS, TEN STORIES

What is the importance of a community hall? For some, it might be a staple of the town – a place for people to come together and connect in the most remote corners of our island. For others, it might be an architectural marvel or a home for the collective memories shared by family and friends. These ideas and more will be explored through If These Halls Could Talk – a literary partnership between the Festival and Island magazine. We have commissioned ten local writers and sent them to visit the halls dotted throughout our island, meeting residents of these towns along the way. The writers share their personal responses to the spaces, encompassing the intimate connections we form with our communities. These commissioned works will be published in Island 161, released in March 2021.

WRITERS INCLUDE: Stephanie Eslake, Gabrielle Lis, Rachel Edwards, Michael Blake, Jeanette Thompson, Katherine Johnson, Bert Spinks, Danielle Wood, Magdalena Lane and Sandra Potter.

ISLAND

The centrepiece of our 2021 Festival is If These Halls Could Talk – a pan-Tasmanian series of art adventures in community halls across lutruwita/Tasmania, spanning Zeehan in the West to Glen Huon in the South. We have selected ten beloved gathering places and their communities and lovingly matched them with artists, companies, projects and ideas. A year in the making, it's now time to share these special events – many of them world premieres – with our audiences.

What better way to journey through the diverse and scenic landscapes of our heart-shaped island than through an adventure trail of charming community halls, experiencing the brilliance of some of Tasmania's finest creative storytellers? If these halls could talk, we think they would say: 'Welcome, come on in – we've made something beautiful, especially for you!'

In the family of entertainers known as The Marvellous Corricks there were eight talented siblings: seven sisters and their brother, Leonard. He was just 14 years old when he started making and screening silent films.

It was 1901 and his early projections – a highlight of his family's travelling shows filled with sketches and singalongs – would light up the world.

In 2021, Leonard's Beautiful Pictures will return in all their wonder for this Ten Days on the Island world premiere. These 100-year-old films will once again entertain and delight audiences at the historic venues in Zeehan, Scottsdale and Hobart.

Leonard's fascinating newsreels and dramatic films once awed our local communities with the latest in cinematography. Now, a selection of Leonard's films, some black-and-white, some gorgeously hand-tinted – digitally restored by the National Film and Sound Archive of Australia (NFSA) – represent a rare vision of a former world.

Paying homage to The Marvellous Corricks' musical talents, renowned Tasmanian composer and performer Dean Stevenson and his band will accompany these moving pictures with the world premiere of a playful new musical soundscape. We've even commissioned a new ice-cream for this special occasion – Leonard's Lavender!

So, bring your family and, together, we'll welcome Leonard's Beautiful Pictures into the 21st century.

Once projected onto campfire smoke and mist, these photographs reveal the nature of our history.

When Vic McEwan visited the Murrumbidgee River, he projected photographs and videos onto the air itself. Campfire smoke and mist provided a continually changing frame, merging art with environment. Prints of this site-specific installation will be displayed at the Burnie Regional Art Gallery, encouraging us to contemplate human history and the consequences of our past. McEwan produced this large-scale work as part of his 2015 residency at the National Museum of Australia, collaborating with curator George Main. In capturing images of historic museum objects and painting them onto the moving landscape, McEwan responded to dynamic environmental conditions and contested histories.

As you view the images of the dark and cloudy backdrop in Haunting, you may choose to think about how significant objects can change when we allow nature to help us create. 12 FEB - 20 MAR MON - FRI 10AM - 4.30PM SAT 11AM - 4PM (CLOSED MON 8 MAR) BURNIE REGIONAL ART GALLERY pataway BURNIE

A family of brothers navigates a family tragedy and a perilous journey in this film based on Favel Parrett's award-winning novel.

Set in lutruwita/Tasmania's rugged South, Past the Shallows centres on the plight of a family of brothers as they try to negotiate the loss of their mother, a father turned to alcohol, and life as young workers on a dangerously derelict abalone fishing boat. This experimental film adaptation from director Ben Winspear and cinematographer Matt Scott casts us into a cold, dark lutruwita/Tasmania where beauty and hardship reign and where an apple from an outcast can be the kindness that saves a child, if only for a day. The disaster caused 400 deaths of emigrant families and crew, who will be remembered as Poor Souls - an exhibition by King Island and mainland Tasmanian artists who interpret Australia's worst civil disaster using painting, sculpture, video and music. We imagine the journey of the doomed passengers, who they were and what they expected at journey's end 175 years ago. TEN DAYS ON THE ISLAND IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE NATIONAL FILM AND SOUND ARCHIVE AUSTRALIA (NFSA) AND QUEEN VICTORIA MUSEUM AND ART GALLERY PRESENTS

MARVELLOUS CORRCKS A special event celebrating Tasmania's first family of entertainment.

Long before Netflix, we went to the theatre to be dazzled and delighted by the glamour and spectacle of variety shows that travelled far and wide. One of the most brilliant and popular shows on the Australian circuit was presented by the family of entertainers known as The Marvellous Corricks.

Albert and Sarah Corrick had seven daughters and one son – all multi-skilled entertainers who came to lutruwita/Tasmania from Aotearoa/New Zealand at the turn of the 20th Century. For the next 15 years, these talented travelling performers put on thousands of shows, achieving worldwide fame and considerable fortune. On retirement in 1915, the family settled in Launceston, devoting themselves to community music-making and charitable works and earning the love and esteem of the city. In this affectionate tribute to The Marvellous Corricks, Ten Days on the Island joins forces with the National Film and Sound Archive Australia (NFSA) and Queen Victoria Museum and Art Gallery for a show-stopping special event in the Princess Theatre – once a regular performance venue for the original entertainers.

Some of lutruwita/Tasmania's finest performing artists including soprano Emily Burke, narrator Stuart Loone, music director Dean Stevenson, musicians from the Tasmanian Youth Orchestra and Launceston Philharmonic will bring to vivid life the stories, music and eclectic stage surprises that made the Corricks famous, featuring a screening of the spectacular collection of digitally restored films known as Leonard's Beautiful Pictures.

Deep in the heart of lutruwita/Tasmania, surrounded by paddocks and spectacular scenery, sits a tiny wooden hall. You'll hear poetry from the winners of the inaugural Liffey Youth Poetry Prize and connect with poets from other parts of the planet through our partnership with Scotland's international poetry festival StAnza.

The weekend also marks the 100th birthday of the late Gwen Harwood and, in association with Island magazine, we will celebrate the Tasmanian poet's eponymous National Poetry Prize. Julie Gough uses art to articulate memories hidden in time. Her two works in the installation Fugitive History help us piece together the often-unrecorded atrocities perpetrated against Tasmanian Aboriginal people by the colonists of Van Diemen's Land.

The film work The Gathering embeds historic texts disclosing colonial violence amidst bucolic footage of rural lutruwita/Tasmania with its distinctive hills, piles of bonfire timber and renowned farm names on fences.

Hunting Ground (Haunted) presents footage of print press posters produced by Gough and placed on Country. These bear witness at ten sites of murderous attacks by colonists against Tasmanian Aboriginal people in the first 30 years post invasion. Fugitive History reconnects place with story. At Ross Town Hall these works bid other hidden histories to resurface and colonial Truth Telling to commence.

LYNETTE WALLWORTH

NEW SOUTH WALES

Expand your understanding of the world and humanity itself with three mesmerising installations by Lynette Wallworth. Through her virtual and mixed reality experiences and extraordinary command of complex technologies, Wallworth evokes that most fundamental of human emotions: empathy.

In this three-part Festival centrepiece, Ten Days on the Island celebrates a visionary Australian artist and filmmaker whose multi-faceted practice explores the creative and human possibilities of screen media.

Wallworth is internationally recognised with two Emmy Awards (for Collisions and Awavena) and the 2020 Crystal Award for Global Cultural Leadership at Davos, Switzerland.

Always accessible and poetic, at the heart of every work is an urgent entreaty to engage with the issues of the world around us – planetary transformation, life and death, empathy and compassion, the experiences of refugees, Indigenous cultures and the impact of climate change on the natural world.

FEARLESSNESS

Gesture and touch provide a gateway to powerful human emotions in this intimate interactive installation. Wallworth has filmed portraits of 11 women who live in Australia but originated from countries including Afghanistan, Sudan, Iraq and El Salvador. The women have lived through wars, survived concentration camps and experienced violence. They appear when you place your hand on the screen and, although their lips won't move, you will receive a glimpse into their grief, strength and hope.

AWAVENA

Awavena is a stunning tale of metamorphosis in the Brazilian Amazon told through virtual reality headset. Wallworth was invited to create Awavena during a time of peril and potential for the Yawanawa community. As they fight to protect nearly 200,000 hectares of Amazonian forest, the Yawanawa have chosen VR technology as means of sharing with the world the cultural rejuvenation that occured when they put an end to rigid gender roles. Made in collaboration with Hushahu - the first female shaman of the Yawanawa people - the virtual and mixed reality experience opens a portal to this vivid, scarcely seen forest world.

Indigenous elder Nyarri Morgan's first contact with Western culture came in the 1950s when his LLISIONS traditional worldview collided with a nuclear explosion in the South Australian desert. Collisions highlights Western ideas about science, culture and technology to share the inevitable consequences we face trying to respond to our environment in a human-induced climate emergency.

Presented as a walking precinct in the historical town of New Norfolk in the Derwent Valley, Intimate Epics offers an intriguing finale to Ten Days on the Island's 20th year celebrations in 2021. At the heart of Intimate Epics is the former colonial asylum at Willow Court, a place of embedded narratives. WHAT IS TASMANIA TALKING ABOUT? On the final day of our 2021 Festival – exactly a year and day since Tasmania's borders closed and the state went into lockdown – we take a moment to gather and reflect on the shifts we've made since that extraordinary time. This time last year, the Premier declared a state of emergency and tough border restrictions. It was the weekend Tasmanians woke up to a headline in the Mercury newspaper that few will forget: 'We've got a moat and we're not afraid to use it.'

Now we are a year older and wiser, how have we grown as individuals and as local communities? And how might we together reimagine Tasmania's shared future? These are big questions facing us all and to wrestle with them, Ten Days on the Island has invited a fascinating and diverse group of Tasmanians from every region to join the conversation.

Imagine if we were to cast off our view of lutruwita/Tasmania as a solitary island.

What if we were to perceive lutruwita/ Tasmania as part of a vast archipelago stretching across the Asia Pacific? Could this alternative view, where the ocean is a unifying force, challenge colonial and penal histories and help foster wider relations?

Composing Archipelagos calls into question the way we perceive our heart-shaped home. This new exhibition features the works of artists hailing from Tasmania, interstate and across the Pacific. Through painting, installation, sculpture and visual media, the artists share their reflections of land, sea and sky. With these unique expressions of our geography and history, conversations may begin to surface about our remoteness and connection.
